Even though the implementation date for ICD-10 is not until October 1, 2013; it is critical that hospitals begin planning for this transition now. ICD-10's impact will be farther reaching than just new coding guidelines and staff training. It will significantly impact virtually every aspect of technology in use by most hospitals.

Regardless of the size and complexity of any healthcare organization, the most important foundation for each organization is to develop an executive-sponsored, enterprise-wide approach to help mitigate potential risks and to ensure that there is a formal effort to achieve ICD-10 compliance. An enterprise-wide approach can and will safeguard against the far-reaching impacts that are anticipated by the migration of ICD-9 to ICD-10. Learn from experts a practical approach to formalizing the components of your organization's ICD-10 efforts.
