

Healthcare Finance and Budgeting Basics

Program Overview

Healthcare organizations are tasked each year with accomplishing more with fewer resources. Being a good financial steward is a critical component of leadership, especially in the current complex healthcare environment. As healthcare leaders, it is an expectation to understand budgets and financial statements as well as analyze and interpret data to tell the story behind what the numbers show. For managers new in their role or new to managing a budget, this can be a daunting and overwhelming added responsibility. This interactive session will increase your knowledge and understanding of financial management, specifically as it relates to Maryland's hospitals, and build on your financial acumen competence.

Program Objectives

1. Identify the nurse manager's role in financial management.
2. Discuss the importance of cost containment as it relates to Maryland hospital financing.
3. Recognize financial management as continuous performance improvement.
4. Define key financial and budgeting terms.
5. Analyze and interpret nursing unit budget statements and variance reports.
6. Identify at least three strategies for providing high-quality care while staying cost-competitive.
7. Identify at least three strategies for effective partnerships between nursing and finance units.

About the Speaker

Lyndley O'Dell, MS facilitates MHEI's healthcare finance boot camp for new managers and has designed and facilitated customized finance and budgeting training for mid-level leaders in several Maryland health systems. Lyndley has experience partnering with healthcare leaders in analyzing variance, labor distribution, and premium pay reports and implementing cost reduction strategies. In addition to holding her PHR and SHRM-CP HR certifications, Lyndley is also certified through ATD's Improving Human Performance program.
