Program Overview

The past 2 years have brought unique challenges to the workplace including “the great resignation” and the first drop in employee engagement in a decade. So many factors impacting the healthcare environment are out of our control, however, engagement is something you can directly influence!

During these two sessions on engagement, we will explore our own personal levels of engagement – what drives our engagement and what gets in the way. We will also spend time examining leadership strategies that will create an environment that encourages employees to become more engaged as well as discussing what employees own in their own levels of engagement. Participating in these sessions will provide you with proven leadership practices that you can apply immediately to yourself, your peers & your teams!

Program Objectives

1. Recognize current employee engagement data
2. Describe impact of employee engagement on organizational results
3. Identify key drivers of employee engagement
4. Create an action plan to apply engagement strategies
